Junior Newsletter

Calling all lion-lovers

Welcome to our Junior Newsletter Vol 2, which we will publish on an ongoing basis giving updates of wildlife conservation, our news, highlights, future plans and fun activities!

In this series, we would be continuing on our discussions about interesting facts about lions! Wild lions are only found in Africa, although there is a small population of them in Gir Forest National Park in India.

Learning objectives:

- Lion hunting habits
- Lion cub features

Who is the real King of the Jungle? Send your answers over!

African Lions: Hunting Habits

Lions do most of their hunting at night. This is because lions' eyes have adapted to the dark.

There are strategies in play when hunting. For example, lionesses have specific roles when hunting, there is a 'centre' where its responsibility is to end its prey. Whilst the others would go by the role of 'wing', responsible to chase the prey towards the 'centre'.

Did you know?

- Lions prefer to hunt during the storm as the noise and wind make it harder for prey to see them.

Cub Features

On their sandy coats, young lions have rosettes and patches, but they fade as they grow older. A lion's pride consists of related mothers and their cubs, and often a male or small group of males who guard the pride. The lionesses raise their young together, and the babies can drink milk from any female.

Fun Fact!

- Female lions are the main hunters and the males guard the pride's territory and their young!
